

Abstract

We review how much can be learned about supersymmetry by combining the results of cosmological observations and low energy experiments such as LFV searches with the LHC results.

(This is a review of Prof. Masiero's talk at NOVE 2008.)